Wildflowers

The abundance and diversity of flora in the Great Southern Treasures is truly unique.

The South West of Western Australia has been named one of the world's 34 global diversity hotspots. There are 8000 species of wildflowers across the region (in contrast, the UK has only 1500), half of which are found nowhere else in the world.

Keep an eye out for: Mountain Bells, Magenta Queen of Sheba orchids, and the distinctive Stirling Range banksia.

Please do not pick the wildflowers. The potential impact can be quite devastating to populations of some species that require the setting of seed for regeneration.

Call into a local Centre for more information, maps & tips.

The Horsepower Highway F4

The multi-award winning 75 km ever-evolving trail of roadside vintage tractors, runs along the Broomehill-Gnowangerup Road, on the most scenic approach to the iconic Stirling Range National Park. The interactive map provides locations, history & context to your travels.
